Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 31 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Very mild end to the year but dry for many.

This Evening and Tonight:
Some rain moving northeast over the UK but for most only small amounts with many staying dry. Remaining windy, particularly in the west with coastal and hill top gales for a time. Remaining very mild.

Saturday:
Bright start for many. Northwest cloudier with rain, this moving eastwards bringing a short period of rain for many, then lingering in the southeast later. Windy and very mild.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Windy with rain for the north, Sunday. Elsewhere, sunshine and showers, potentially squally for some parts of England and Wales. Turning colder through Monday and Tuesday, with snow for some.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.